Thinking Of You Phone Calls

My sweetie and I have been seeing each other for going on five months now. He is not particularly comfortable or used to being verbal about how he feels and although we only get to see each other perhaps once a week, and that is only if he is not busy, he does without fail call me three to four times a day, "just to check in", or just to say "hi." Even though sometimes it can be very hard not to be able to spend time with him on a more regular basis, I do know that he cares and most definitely thinks about me during his days.:dry:
